

Centro de la Familia de Utah

Developing educational opportunities that empower Latinos.

April 7, 2010

The Honorable Julius Genachowski Chairman Federal Communications Commission 445 12th Street, SW Washington, DC 20554

Re: MB Docket No. 10-56

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

I am writing with respect to Comcast's proposed merger with NBC Universal which is currently under review by the Commission. I am the head of the largest Latino-oriented nonprofit agency in Utah, and I have firsthand knowledge of Comcast's dedication to promoting diversity both in its corporate culture and in the communities it serves.

Centro de la Familia de Utah focuses its efforts on developing educational opportunities that empower Latinos economically, socially and politically. Comcast has long been a strong supporter of our educational programs, including our Learn Everything Together initiative. With Comcast's support, we are able to be an agent of change in the Latino community, providing low-income children with an integral preschool education and health, social and nutrition services that help them get a head start in life.

Thanks in large part to Comcast's support, Centro de la Familia has been able to offer programs designed to raise the literacy rate among Hispanic youths in Utah. Latinos have the highest dropout rates in the nation and two-thirds of the Latino population lives in poverty. Education and parent empowerment is our mission and Comcast understands that and provides the support that helps us make a difference.

In addition to its works with Centro de la Familia, Comcast has also supported the Hispanic community in its business activities. In its recruitment and career development efforts, Comcast partners with such professional and community based Hispanic organizations as the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, the National Society of Hispanic MBAs and the League of the United Latin American Citizens.

In addition, with Comcast's demonstrated support for diversity, I am excited by the opportunities that the proposed Comcast-NBC Universal merger offers the Hispanic community of Utah and others like it across the United States.

Sincerely,

Gonzalo Palza

Chief Executive Officeentro de la Familia de

Developing educational opportunities that empower

Fax: 801.521.6242 • 3780 South West Temple, South Salt Lake, UT 84115 • http://www.cdlfu.org